I could never get the Enfield to run good enough so I am selling the sidecar separate. It seems like a well-constructed unit, all steel with heavy tube chassis and rear shock absorber. The original fitting kit was a bit cobbled together so I bought a brand new kit from Inder Exports (Cost over £200 alone) who I think made the sidecar.

Sidecars are not for everyone. They are arguably slower than solo machines, they cannot filter in heavy traffic and they corner flat. If you are a rider who enjoys sweeping turns, counter steering and the smooth, effortless riding characteristics of a modern sports bike, you may not like sidecars. Cornering with a sidecar is different.
